Public Defense Attorney Talks To Chamber

BY WES FEESE
EDITOR

The Columbia-Adair County Chamber of Commerce met for their August meeting Tuesday in the Chamber’s basement, and heard from Shanda West-Stiles, an attorney with the Dept. of Public Advocacy.

West-Stiles explained the history of public defense attorneys, beginning with Clarence Gideon, whose landmark case established that no one should be deprived of legal counsel because they can’t afford it. Gideon – who was originally found guilty in his first trial, in which he didn’t have a lawyer, was granted a second trial with an attorney and was eventually acquitted.

“The truth is, we represent so many people in our communities,” West-Stiles said to the audience. “Some of those people might be like Mr. Gideon, and we want to stand up for them.”

West-Stiles said that public defense attorneys help keep the scales of justice balanced, and save the government money by keeping innocent people out of jail, where they are a drain on the tax system.

“We’re good for the financial well-being of this state,” West-Stiles said. “Wrongful convictions cost money.”

She went on to explain that her department represented more than 3,800 individuals last year in this coverage area, which includes Adair County and seven surrounding counties.

“We’re a part of this community and we’re proud to be,” West-Stiles said at the conclusion of her speech to the Chamber members.

Health Fair Hopes To Boost Westlake’s Image
Hospital Offers Free Screenings Oct. 1-11

BY WES FEESE
EDITOR

When Westlake Regional Hospital filed for Chapter Nine bankruptcy last month, its Board of Trustees was adamant that the move was a simple reorganization of debts, and the institution would continue to provide high-quality, efficient medical services. Still, the stigma of bankruptcy remained, and the public image of the hospital only worsened after WBKO’s television news segment on the institution last week portrayed the hospital as in danger of closing. Acting CEO Neal Gold says that this image is inaccurate, and hopes the upcoming Health Fair will give the community a chance to reassess its opinion of the hospital.

“It’s difficult to use the word bankruptcy,” Gold says. “Chapter Nine is used so rarely – at this point all it’s done is allow us to stop trying to pay off the old debt that our creditors were demanding. It gives us time to come up with a plan to pay them over a greater length of time.”

The “B” word has caused quite a stir in this community, leading to speculation that the hospital will have to close its doors, but Gold says the hospital’s service has never been better, and sites its 99-percent patient satisfaction rate as proof.

“If the [WBKO] reporter had bothered to look into it, he

The 2013 South Central Kentucky Outdoor Exposition boomed from the beginning as crowds swarmed the numerous booths and displays at the opening of the event Saturday morning at Adair County High School.

2013 Outdoor Expo ‘The Best One Yet’

BY BLAKE SPIRES
STAFF WRITER

For the fourth summer in a row, the South Central Kentucky Outdoor Expo returned to Columbia, and, for the fourth summer in a row, the event improved upon its previous edition with a fantastic turnout and experience. Even with the past success of the event, this year’s Expo was unparalleled in terms of vendors, attendance and marquee quests.

“From the comments we’ve had from everyone involved, this was the biggest and best event we’ve had in the four years of having it here,” said Expo chairman Terry Partin. “It was just a terrific showing all the way around.”

That success of the event was obvious even in the parking lot of Adair County High School where the Expo was held. Before the official starting time of 9am Saturday morning, the lot was nearly full, with patrons parking along the grass and behind the school. Inside the gymnasium, which served as the center of the vending and display experience, the spectacle was equally impressive. Booths, displays, televisions, equipment, and outdoor enthusiasts packed the space literally from floor to ceiling as a camouflage stand jutted toward the rafters in the center of the floor. In the cafeteria, various calling competitions were held, along with a host of seminars provided by outdoor experts such as Mark Menendez, the no.17 ranked bass fisherman in the

Charlie Loy Benefit Set For Saturday

BY WES FEESE
EDITOR

On March 27, 2013, in a helicopter on its way to the University of Louisville Hospital, Charlie Loy heard the grim prognosis.

“The only thing I remember is them talking, saying I had a lot of brain damage,” Loy, 37, says. “They said I wouldn’t live four more hours.”

Just minutes earlier, Loy had no idea his life might soon end. He had just gotten off work in Glasgow, and was headed home after working the night shift. It was about 8:30 in the morning. He was on Hwy 80W when a dog ran out in front of him.

“I avoided the dog but my brakes went out,” Loy recalls. “I smacked into a tree – pinned me in the vehicle.”

Loy’s wife, April, remembers hearing the news.

“I was at work, and I work at a daycare so I couldn’t have my phone,” April says. “I had a break and checked my phone, and I had seven missed calls. Before I called anyone back my grandmother called and said Charlie had been in an accident and they don’t think he’s going to make it.”

He almost didn’t make it. The night of the accident, Loy

LWC Welcomes Class Of 2017

The countdown began Saturday for May 13, 2017. That is when members of the Lindsey Wilson College Class of 2017 are scheduled to graduate from the liberal arts college. But in the next four years, great things are expected of one of the college’s largest freshmen classes.

“You are going to accomplish great things together and as individuals,” LWC President William T. Luckey Jr. told the freshmen Saturday afternoon at an opening ceremony in the Doris and Bob Holloway Health & Wellness Center. “You will win national championships together; you will travel across this country together and to other countries as well; you will sing and act, make music together; you will serve in nursing homes, daycares and afterschool programs together; you will laugh, you will cry, you will grieve, and you will celebrate together.”

College officials will not know for a couple weeks the size of this year’s freshman class. But they already know it will be one of the largest and brightest. Luckey told the freshmen that they are part of the “best and brightest” class in LWC’s 110-year history, according

The Weekly WORD

Editorial Commentary
Written By
Wes Feese, EDITOR

The biggest story in Adair County last week isn't printed on our front page. It received only a passing mention on radio and in other local media outlets. It will receive no mention at all outside of this community.

Don't let the lack of publicity fool you though. Last Wednesday this county lost one of it's finest citizens, one of the greatest women to ever walk the earth, my grandmother, Opal Feese.

Born in 1920, Grandma Opal's parents died when she was very young. She spent her childhood busying herself with school and helping support her family by cooking and cleaning for more well-to-do Adair County families. She wasn't allowed much of a traditional upbringing, but she never seemed bitter over this at all – she simply made sure her own children and grandchildren were given all the opportunities she wasn't. Graduating eighth grade signaled the end of her formal education, but she never stopped learning, or teaching, for the rest of her life.

Her seven kids, 20 grandkids, and 26 great grandchildren could each fill a book with all of her witty sayings, stories of her love and generosity, and tales of her otherworldly cooking skills. So could her sons and daughters-in-law. So could her nieces and nephews, and really, anyone else who ever came into contact with her.

Grandma's house was always the place to be growing up. This was true for everyone in my family, as well everyone in the Egypt community, but most of them are my family so I'm being redundant. Anyway, going to Grandma's was always a treat, and I was lucky enough to live within walking distance, so my sisters and I were there almost every day.

First of all, you were always well fed if you were at Grandma's. It was an insult to her to grace her home without feeding yourself, but this was never an issue since she always had the best food. She cooked large meals every single day, and since only her and my grandpa lived at the house, and neither were particularly big eaters, there was always a surplus available for visitors.

I learned the process at a young age. When you entered the house, you offered a quick greeting before examining the cookie jar. Grandma made the best no-bake oatmeal cookies in the United States, so scarfing down three or four before entering the house was common. Sometimes though, an inconsiderate cousin or aunt or uncle had already finished off the cookies, so we'd have to move on to the oven.

Grandma must have developed the habit when she was raising kids, but even after they had all married and moved out, she continued to cook massive breakfasts every morning. The signature of these breakfasts was always homemade biscuits, made with lard, not vegetable oil. Every morning, she'd pile all the uneaten biscuits onto a plate, set the plate in the oven, and wait for visitors. It's hard to put into words how biscuits can be exciting, but trust me when I tell you there are family members of mine reading this right now nodding their heads in complete understanding.

The other thing I remember about my grandmother was how hard she worked. Already old by the time I came along, I remember being shocked one winter evening when I was a child to find Grandma in the tobacco barn, stripping trash. I was confused to find dear old Grandma doing man's work, and probably made some dumb comment about it, because I remember being told very quickly that Grandma had stripped more tobacco than most men I'd met, and there wasn't anyone around who could grade it like she could, and I'd be hard-pressed to find anyone that was faster than she was, either.

I never again saw Grandma do that kind of farm work, but she didn't exactly settle into retirement either. Even into her mid-80s, she continued to garden, can, freeze, and cook meals that deserved some sort of award or recognition.

Mostly though, Grandma will be remembered for her unfailing and unwavering love of her family. She loved big gatherings with all of us around, and she'd tolerate almost anything to have us. Kids of all ages would run around their house and yard all day, and she never once complained. We wore out dirt patches in her yard from playing baseball, to which my grandpa and she always said, "We're raising kids, not grass."

My sister – Kara – and I used to get off the school bus at Grandma's every afternoon when we were in elementary school. She had a long driveway, probably two tenths of a mile, and every day Grandma was waiting for us in her car so we didn't have to make the five-minute walk to her house. I remember more than one family member scolding us for being too lazy to walk, but Kara and I still maintain that we never asked Grandma to do this. In fact, after being told that we should walk, we offered to. Grandma said okay, but the next day she was waiting for us at the end of the drive, in her car, like always.

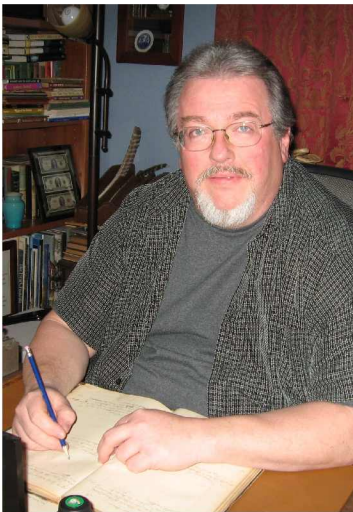

One time, my sister and a couple of my cousins were jumping on a bed in the bedroom, and broke one of the braces that runs under the box spring. Grandma scolded them as harshly as she could, which was by simply saying, "I oughta whip y'all but I'm not going to."

They cried and cried, not because they didn't want to get whipped – they knew they wouldn't – but because they had upset such a sweet woman.

All these stories and countless more were told and retold over the past week. Each of her 50-some descendants shared memories of her. Some were known to the entire family, and some I'd never heard before. The one common consensus though was: There will never be another person like her. And that's a shame.

Robertson Academy

Lot number twelve on the town plat of Columbia was the site of the first known school in town. The school was built in 1812 from subscriptions of one hundred seventy-five dollars in cash and four hundred sixty-one dollars in materials and labor.

Samuel Best Robertson was a Presbyterian minister and teacher, born 1774, died 1848. He came to Adair County to pastor Shiloh Church, in the county, and operate the school in town. On 25 January 1812 the Trustees of the Town of Columbia had ordered that an academy or seminary of learning be built. William Caldwell, William Owens and William Worley were to superintend the work. Caldwell donated the lot. The Kentucky General Assembly established Robertson's Academy in the Town of Columbia in the County of Adair on 31 January 1814.

James and Benjamin McDowell, brothers and carpenters, and Robert Ball, a mason, carried out actual construction. The building was made of brick and was twenty by thirty feet and two stories high. There were ten windows; two fireplaces downstairs, one at either end, and three on the second floor, which indicates three rooms upstairs and two downstairs. There were ten benches and two long tables.

In the early stages of construction, this school was called both Adair Academy and Columbia Academy, but by 1814 it was commonly, then officially known as Robertson's Academy. It opened for students in April 1813, with Furney F.F.G. Herald as assistant to Rev. Robertson, and continued until April 1825 when Rev. Robertson moved to Tennessee. After Robertson's departure, the building was used on and off as a school and then as a residence. It is now part of the residence of Mrs. Wanda Hill.

Land was set aside by the State of Kentucky for various seminaries of learning, and what came to be known as Robertson's Academy was no exception. The monies obtained from the sale of various tracts of vacant land were to be used to finance the building and continuation of the designated schools.

According to Adair County deeds, several transactions took place between 1820 and 1832 for the benefit of the Academy. The deeds were: Trustees of Robertson's Academy, in Columbia William Caldwell, Cyrus Walker, William Owens, John Field and Christopher Tompkins, transferred to William Davis an unstated number of acres on Crocus Creek for twenty dollars, October 1820.

Caldwell, Owens and Walker, Trustees, to Benjamin Dice 100 acres on Burns Creek and Harrod's Fork of Crocus Creek, March 1821.

Caldwell, Owens and Walker, Trustees, to Jeremiah Abell 150 acres on East Fork of Little Barren River, and to include one of the head springs of Lick Branch of East Fork, for $30 in June 1822.

Caldwell, Walker and Owens to James P. Findley 150 acres on the South and East Forks of Little Barren for $30 in June 1822.

Caldwell, Walker and Owens to Christopher Brown for one dollar, three tracts on Crocus Creek, totaling 50 acres, September 1823.

Caldwell, Walker, Owens, and Dr. Nathan Gaither to Joseph Nelson, two tracts totaling 280 acres for $80, June 1830.

Caldwell, Walker and Owens to Joseph Damron 100 acres, part of a 200 tract on Green River, February 1827.

Caldwell, Walker and Owens to Samuel Damron 100 acres on Green River, the remainder of the aforementioned 200 acre tract, February 1827.

Caldwell, Walker, Owens and Benjamin Monroe to Joseph Nelson 100 acres on Big Creek, branch of Russell Creek, for $40, March 1833.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Westlake's Image

Editor,
My husband and I are very concerned by the reporting of Jake Boswell and his story which appeared on air on August 16, 2013.

We bought our small farm in 1983, and moved here in 1994. Since then, we have been to Westlake Regional Hospital many times--as visitors and as patients.

We have been to the Emergency Room, had blood work, cat scans, x-rays and MRIs, have taken part in the annual Health Fairs, and have had several out-patient procedures. My mother-in-law was hospitalized here for several days until her passing.

We are so pleased to say that during all those visits, we have been treated with kindness, compassion, and competence by everyone, from Admissions to Medical, to Nursing to Housekeeping. In our experience, all of the Westlake Regional Staff continue to be top-notch during these difficult times -- and we thank them.

I hope Reporter Boswell will visit Westlake and Adair County again, and come away with a more accurate impression. Thank you.

FROM THE DESK OF
Attorney General Jack Conway

Attorney General Jack Conway and his staff will raise awareness about prescription drug abuse and cybersafety at this year's Kentucky State Fair, which runs until August 25 from 9 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily at the Kentucky Fair and Exposition Center.

"Protecting Kentucky kids from Internet predators and raising awareness about the devastating consequences of prescription drug abuse continue to be top priorities of mine," General Conway said. "These are issues that affect families in every corner of the Commonwealth. I hope you will stop by our booth in the South Wing to learn how you can protect your kids from pain pill addiction and the dangers that exist on the Internet."

The Attorney General's booth, located in the Kidz Biz section of the South Wing, will have information and free give-away items related to General Conway's statewide Keep Kentucky Kids Safe prescription drug education and awareness program, as well as his Cybersafety initiative.

In 2010, General Conway launched the Keep Kentucky Kids Safe initiative with the Kentucky Justice Cabinet and its Office of Drug Control Policy, Kentucky Pharmacists Association, National Association of Drug Diversion Investigators (NADDI), Operation UNITE and concerned parents. Since its launch, Attorney General Conway and his partners have alerted more than 20,000 students across Kentucky about the dangers of prescription drug abuse.

"In a national survey, one in five teens admitted using prescription pills non-medically," General Conway said. "Kids are putting their lives and futures at risk when they take prescription medications that are not prescribed to them by their doctor. We now lose more people to prescription overdoses than traffic accidents. Kentucky cannot afford to lose another generation to this scourge."

General Conway and his staff also travel across the Commonwealth educating parents, students and teachers about the dangers that exist online. Since taking office, he has presented his Internet safety message to more than 52,000 Kentuckians, mostly children.

General Conway has partnered with the Kentucky Department of Education and ConnectKentucky to create CybersafeKY. Through the partnership, the agencies are able to pool their resources to provide more Internet safety educational opportunities in Kentucky.

"Kids need to realize that the pictures and messages they post on social-networking sites today can affect their chances of getting into college or landing a good job," General Conway said. "Always think before you post, and never arrange a private, in person meeting with someone that you have met online."

In addition to his educational efforts, Attorney General Conway's Cybercrimes Unit has launched nearly 350 child pornography investigations and seized more than 403,000 child pornographic images and videos from the Internet. The Unit's investigative efforts have resulted in more than 114 child pornography convictions- a 100 percent conviction rate.

For more information about preventing prescription drug abuse or to learn about Cybersafety, please visit ag.ky.gov.

would’ve found that we’re in the top one-percent in the nation in patient satisfaction,” Gold says. “It’s unfortunate that they didn’t present a fair and balanced picture.”

Even with the perceived slight by WBKO, Gold is confident that Westlake can win back the doubters with its annual Health Fair, scheduled for Oct. 1 through Oct. 11.

“We’re going back to a full Health Fair this year,” Gold explains. “Last year was only blood draws and lab tests. This year we’ve brought back vendor booths, and we’re going to have drawings for giveaways.”

Gold sees the Health Fair as a perfect opportunity for Westlake to demonstrate its newfound efficiency, as well as its pristine facilities and excellent medical services.

“We want to show how clean the hospital is, since we’re rated in the top one-percent in the nation by our patients, and that we have a lot of modern equipment,” Gold says. “We’ll show all that off.”

Though Gold admits that the hospital still has a long and hard road ahead of it, he believes the worst days are behind them, and is excited about future possibilities for the institution.

“Every day gets a little bit better. We’ve gone through some hard times,” Gold says. “We’re looking forward, and we’re doing the things that need to be done.”

underwent a dangerous spinal surgery. Then his lung collapsed. Pneumonia set in. He had broken bones all over his body, and was essentially left without the use of his limbs. At some point, he flat lined for four minutes before he was resuscitated. Another time, his fever climbed to 104 degrees.

Despite the setbacks, Loy remained positive.

“God blessed me, because I shouldn’t even be alive – I’m lucky,” Loy says. “I’ve seen the light and the dark, and I don’t know why God chose this for me, but he did.”

Loy remained at U of L until May 1, and was kept under sedation for a large chunk of that time period. He was told he had incomplete paralysis, which means that his spine was badly injured, but not completely severed, so there is a possibility that he my regain the use of his legs. After he left U of L, Loy was transferred to Frazier Rehab Institute, where he stayed until he was sent home on August 2.

Loy is confident that he will one day walk again, but he acknowledges that it will take a great deal of work, as well as time. He’s regained some use of his right hand, and says he’s working on his left hand at rehab, but so far can’t do anything with his legs.

This has left April to carry the load for the family, which includes their eight-year-old son, Taylor.

“She’s my rock,” Loy says. “She’s doing it all right now.”

Doing it all is hard though, and sometimes it’s still not enough. The Loy’s lost their Portland-area home in 2012 to a storm. After the accident, they were evicted from the home they were renting. Loy’s disability payments have run out, and he’s still a long way away from returning to work.

“I’ve always worked with my hands,” Loy says. “And now I can’t do anything with them. I’m not giving up though.”

The financial strain has led to several friends and family members getting involved, and they’ve organized a community-wide fundraiser for Loy on August 24 at 107 Ministries (389 Portland Rd. Columbia, Ky). There will be a fish fry, several local gospel singers will perform, and an auction will be held. Activities will get underway at 4 p.m.

“We’re just so thankful to have our family together,” April says. “There’s been a big outreach and we appreciate all the support.”

“God bless everyone for every single thought and prayer,” Loy says.

Gold says that since the Chapter Nine filing, the focus has been allowed to shift back to where it should be – medical services.

“We still have a long road ahead of us, but the biggest challenge right now is to get the Behavioral Health Unit up and running, and to fill the vacancies we have with providers,” Gold says. “After that, it will be adding additional services and starting work on the facility itself.”

While Gold acknowledges that Westlake is still far from financial stability, he believes that the work is finally beginning to pay off.

“I’m appreciative of all the support we’ve been getting from the community,” he says. “We have a very dedicated board, and the staff here at the hospital have really bent over backwards to bring the community great medical services.”

Homeplace Festival Offers More This Year

2013 Program Scheduled For September 7th

The annual Fall Heritage Festival at Homeplace on Green River will be Saturday, Sept. 7, from 8 a.m. until 5 p.m. CT. This year’s Festival will feature both new activities and continuation of the most popular activities from prior years. As in the past the festival will be family oriented and there is no charge for admission.

New activities this year are a well-marked trail to the cave and springs that includes guided walks, a pedal tractor pull for the youngsters, more food vendors, and several new exhibitions and demonstrations.

The barrel train, petting zoo, pony rides, hay rides, mule wagon rides, face painting, games for the kids, arts and crafts sales and other activities, demonstrations and exhibitions will return this year. There will be a $1 charge for some of the rides but many of the activities are free. The usual BBQ, tenderloin and pulled pork will be available from several vendors. There will also be a hot dog stand for a quick bite and pinto beans and fried potatoes cooked over an open fire with corn bread. There will be live music from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m. featuring Voices of Praise, The Foster Children, Potter’s Clay of Lexington, Neal Sneed and Friends, The Exie Bluegrass Boys and Mary Kutter of Lebanon.

A photography workshop led by Lindsey Wilson Journalism Professor David Goguen is scheduled again this year. There is no charge. If you would like to join in this workshop contact Professor Goguen at goguedu@lindsey.edu or call (270) 384-8241. You will need to bring your own digital camera.

If you wish to exhibit and/or sell your locally made arts and crafts contact Vonnice Kolbenschlager to reserve space. She can be contacted at ykolben@duo-county.com or call (270) 384 6777.

The annual Homeplace Heritage Festival showcases the farm and its many benefits.

Homeplace is an outdoor classroom open year around for hiking, picnics, bird watching and other outdoor activities. The farm offers many opportunities for artists and photographers. Homeplace is located at 5807 New Columbia Rd. (HWY 55) between Columbia and Campbellsville and is a joint operation of Adair, Green and Taylor counties. It has no paid staff and depends on volunteers interested in community service. Additional information is available at www.homeplacefarm.org.

The Basics of Stevia

There’s been a lot of hype about stevia. Stevia is an extract of a shrub originating from South America and is also grown in India, South Korea and China.

In 2008, the U.S. Food and Drug Administration approved the use of refined stevia, called Rebiana or Reb A, as an additive in food and beverage products in the United States. Refined stevia is 200 to 300 times sweeter than sugar. The sweetener has no calories, and studies have shown it does not cause a spike in blood-glucose levels, which may make it safe for diabetics. While it was only recently approved in the U.S., the Japanese have used stevia in their diets for years. It was also recently approved for human consumption by the European Union and Canada.

Since receiving approval from the FDA, many products containing processed and refined stevia have been released. Stevia is listed under many names including Stevia in the Raw, Sun Crystals, Pure Via, Enliten, Sweetleaf Sweetener and Truvia.

While products containing stevia may seem like a perfect low-calorie option for those with a sweet tooth, no medical evidence exists to show that it aids in weight loss any more than artificial sweeteners, according to the Mayo Clinic. It can also cause mild side effects for consumers including nausea and the feeling of fullness. The FDA has not approved whole-leaf stevia or crude stevia for human consumption in its pure form yet due to concerns about its effect on blood sugar levels, and the renal, reproductive and the cardiovascular systems.

Like other sweeteners, products containing stevia should be used in moderation. You should carefully read the labels of all food and drinks containing the product as they may include additional calories or carbohydrates from other ingredients.

Robey, Compton Farms Claim Top Awards At The Dairy Recognition Dinner

Robey Farms of Logan County won the Kentucky Dairy Production Award, and the Tony Compton family of Adair County earned the 2013 Kentucky Dairy Quality Award.

The Robey and Compton farms were among those honored during the annual Dairy Recognition Dinner Aug. 16 at the Kentucky Exposition Center in Louisville.

“The Dairy Recognition Dinner honors the best of the best in Kentucky’s outstanding dairy industry,” Agriculture Commissioner James Comer said. “Kentucky’s dairy farm families and dairy businesses work hard to provide the milk, cheese, ice cream, and other products that our families depend on. I hope everyone will join me in showing your appreciation for all they do.”

The Kentucky Dairy Quality Award is judged on industry quality standards and farm inspections. The Compton farm received a monetary award and a farm-gate sign. Other finalists were David Hutchison of Adair County and Kenneth Briggs of Taylor County.

The Robey farm took top prize in the Kentucky Dairy Production Award ñ All Herds competition for the fourth consecutive year. They achieved a rolling herd average (the average weight of milk a herd produces in one year) of more than 27,000 pounds. Top Herd Production ñ Mixed Herd was won by the Rowe Farm, Billy and Freddie Rowe of Adair County. The Proficient Dairy Producer Award also went to the Robey family. The Proficient Dairy Producer Award is given on the basis of several factors as recorded by the Dairy Herd Improvement Association.

District winners for the production award were Howard Yoder, Christian County; Sam Coblenz, Todd County; Kinslow Family, Barren County; L&B Dairy (Billy Russell), Metcalfe County; Corbin Brothers Dairy (Roger/David Corbin), Taylor County; Ross Russell, Russell County; Darrel Horst, Lincoln County; Eku Meadowbrook Farm, Madison County; Dan/Wayne Martin, Mason County; John Kalmey, Shelby County; Tri-Mast Dairy (Brent/Michael Masterson), Marion County; and Longview Farms (Larry Embry), Grayson County. The production awards were sponsored by the Kentucky Dairy Development Council and Kentucky Farm Bureau.

The fourth annual Kentucky Quality Milk Hauler Award went to George Lee “Pete” Clifton of Sparta. He hauls for Tom Slayback Trucking. Nominees were evaluated on activities that have contributed to the quality of their work and the positive image that they portray for the dairy industry.

The outstanding overall and Kentucky dairy products exhibitor at the Kentucky State Fair was Winchester Farms Dairy.

The Milk Safety Branch presented community service awards to Pat Klein, Dean Foods; Steve Ericksen, who is retired from the Dairy Farmers of America; Eric McClain, who is retired from the Southeast United Dairy Industry Association; Bluegrass Dairy and Food of Barren and Washington counties, and Gordon Jones, Stockyard Farm and Dairy.

The Dairy Promotion Award and Dairy Service Award went to Eric McClain. The Culinary Award went to Erika Tedesco of Louisville.

More than 180 dairy producers and industry representatives from throughout the Commonwealth attended the dinner, which honors the individuals and groups that produce, process and promote Kentucky’s high-quality dairy products. The dinner and awards were sponsored in part by individual dairy plants and cooperatives, the Dairy Products Association of Kentucky, the Kentucky Dairy Development Council, Kentucky Farm Bureau, the Southeast United Dairy Industry Association, and the Kentucky Department of Agriculture.

Class Of 2017

to ACT scores and high school grade point averages.

Luckey encouraged the freshmen to take advantage of the opportunities they receive over the next four years -- not unlike the way he did 35 years ago when he left home for college in the Midwest.

“I had a lot of fun. I played hard, but I also worked hard,” he said. “I took advantage of an incredible opportunity, and I’m reminded of that every day of my life. The question is, will you do the same? Will you take advantage of this opportunity before you today?”

LWC Student Government Association President Jonathan Joseph of Louisville, Ky., told the freshmen that it is easy to find a place at the college, which will have more than 1,150 students living in residence halls this school year.

“This is the most loving place that accepts everyone for who they are and for who they want to be,” he said. “The possibilities at Lindsey Wilson truly are endless. Õ The family aspect of Lindsey Wilson is second to none.”

Students began moving into residence halls early Saturday morning -- an annual tradition that longtime LWC Dean of Students Chris Schmidt said he always enjoys.

“Opening weekend is traditional. It’s performed by colleges all over the nation, but we try to make it special,” Schmidt said. “For many people, opening weekend marks a new beginning and a series of new opportunities. It would be anti-climatic if we didn’t make a big deal out of it. It’s not just a big deal to the students but to the parents and grandparents. We have so many first-generation college students here that it means a lot to entire families.”

And judging by the mood of freshman Luke Rearic of Lexington, Ky., there is much enthusiasm in the LWC freshman class.

“What drew me to Lindsey Wilson was the small campus, and I just liked being here when I visited,” he said. “I came here for wrestling and can’t wait to start here with practice and classes. I’m very excited about my new life here.”

Outdoor Expo

“As far as our seminars, this was easily the best event we’ve been able to put together,” said co-chair David Jones. “People could pay five dollars and come see people of that stature. That’s not an experience we have too often around here.”

In fact, it was not simply an impressive showing for this area, but for any area. Vendors from nearly 90 different cities and nine different states were present at the event, while calling and shooting competitors from as far as Missouri, Indiana, Virginia and North Carolina found their way to Columbia Saturday for the Expo.

“You’d have to drive pretty far to see the quality of show we put on right here,” Jones added.

“The Expo brings a lot of tourists into Adair County,” said Sue Stivers, Director of Tourism for the Columbia-Adair County Chamber of Commerce. “It’s become a time when the hotels and restaurants are full. We’re extremely happy to have the Expo here.”

“We need more events like this,” she continued. “Anytime there’s an event like this held here, it’s not just a positive for the economics of the county, but for the entire community.”

Even with the outside influences and variety of visitors, the citizens of Adair County were the most impressive aspect to many.

“I can’t tell you how many vendors told me in person or through emails how friendly, polite and well-mannered the people they met were. They just had great things to say about the people of this community, and that sort of thing makes you proud,” Partin said. “It’s a wonderful reflection on the entire community.”

The vendors were so enamored with the friendliness of the citizens and the support of the event as a whole that many requested the Expo to extend to a second day next year, an idea Partin says is definitely being considered.

“We had vendors tell us they sold more product Saturday than at any show before. There was even a vendor that sold nearly their entire stock of products in an hour and a half.”

From a competition standpoint, the Expo featured world champions in both calling and shooting. The day concluded with an awards ceremony, also in the cafeteria, which was packed beyond capacity, during which the winners of the numerous events were announced and prizes were given. Many of the victors will move on to the national level of their respective competitions.

Given the success of this year’s competitions, Partin says he and the others in charge of the event are looking into adding duck and goose calling competitions for next year, as well as potentially including a sanctioned outdoor grilling contest with certified judges.

Also part of the conclusion ceremony was the keynote address from speaker Gordon Whittington. Whittington, who co-hosts the television show “North American Whitetail TV” and serves as editor-in-chief of North American Whitetail magazine, spoke about his faith, his experience in hunting, and some of the things he loves the most about both this country and the people he encounters in his work.

“I’m still getting calls and emails from people who just enjoyed his message,” said Partin. “It’s been both people that like his show and people that just felt the message was a very good one. He was a big positive for the event.”

Even the food on-hand was praised by those in attendance.

“One of the things we actually had the most compliments on was the concessions,” Partin added. “Jones Chapel church was in charge of the food, and all of those volunteers were just absolutely terrific.”

“Overall, it was by far the best Expo we’ve had,” Jones said. “It was our best quality of vendors, of seminars, of competition ñ just one of the best shows in the state, from what I’ve heard from several people. It’s amazing how far we’ve come in four years. It just keeps getting bigger and better.”

“It was the best one yet,” agreed Partin.

Indian Football with Strong Scrimmage Showing

Although the season is still a couple weeks away, the 2013 ACHS Football team are several months deep in their preparation. With fall camp and a host of preseason practices, the squad has plenty of reps under their belt. In football, however, nothing prepares you for real contact against an opposing team, and Adair County had an opportunity for just such an experience last Friday against Taylor County.

“We were really excited to get out and hit a different team,” Coach Gay said of the scrimmage. “It’s always a great learning experience, and this was good for our younger guys and an opportunity for new leaders to step up.”

Although the very nature of a scrimmage suggests that no official score is kept, Adair County did emerge on the positive side of an unofficial score.

“It’s always good to be able to say you won, especially when you still have things to work on and didn’t play your best,” Gay said. “It shows our potential when we do put all the pieces together.”

The Indian defense stood out as a balanced unit in the contest. Junior cornerback Brandon Burton snagged a Taylor County pass out of the air and returned it 65-yards the other way for a score, and the Indian’s 4-4 defense demonstrated an ability to stifle any attempt at an inside run threat from the Cardinals.

On offense, the Indians utilized their traditional offense early on, providing key real-time reps to many skill position players—an important task for a squad replacing its leading receiver and rusher from a year ago.

In the third quarter, however, the Indians moved to a power running game approach, testing the mettle of their experienced front line.

“They couldn’t stop it,” Coach Gay said of the Tribe’s power attack. [Senior quarterback] Jake [Hixson] really rallied the guys and our offensive line stepped up and paved the way.”

Overall, the scrimmage provided exactly what the staff hoped it would.

“We still have a lot to work on, as we should,” said Coach Gay. “We had some mental errors and that sort of thing, but a lot of good learning moments and lessons were taken away. We’ve already gotten much better.”

with Blake Spires

I promise I’m not going to rant this week. I’m not going to talk about how crooked the NCAA is (although you should google the story about the Marine that is now ineligible for playing in a USMC rec league) or how Ryan Braun and Alex Rodriguez seem to be trying to surpass one another on a daily basis for most miserable and disgusting human being in baseball. I’m going to take a positive approach. In fact, I’m going to take probably the most positive approach, and it’s because the event is worthy of such praise.

The Little League World Series is everything that is right with sports. In this jaded era of billion dollar athletes, corrupt government bodies, rampant steroid use and rule-changes that take the fun of out games, the LLWS shows up every August for a few weeks of pristine, genuine, All-American sports fun.

I’ve used this column before to praise our local Little League program and all of the fantastic people that volunteer so much of their time and effort to make it a staple of this community, and the LLWS is great for many of the same reasons--they simply expand it to a (literally) global level. Teams from Chinese Taipei, Japan, Mexico, Panama, the Czech Republic and other nations around the world were represented at this year’s event. As always, teams from every region of the United States also compete, and the winner of the US bracket and International bracket will face off for the World Championship later this month.

Think about that. A World Championship in the actual sense of the word--not the way we in the United States like to call the NBA or NFL title winner a ‘world champion’ even though they never beat anyone from further away than Chicago. A group made entirely of volunteers and 12-year-olds produces a true world champion through tournament play. And that tournament is fantastic.

I often make fun of baseball for being slow and dull and antiquated at the Major League level, but Little League does it just right and their television product is fantastic. I watched two full, entertaining games on ESPN2 last night in the time it took the ESPN darling Yankees/Red Sox whine-fest to reach the sixth inning. No one was hit intentionally. No managers acted like fools. Every kid on the roster played, and a young man that hit a two-run homerun to put his squad ahead by three was met at home plate with a congratulatory fist-bumpÖby a kid from another country.

That’s the beauty of it. No one cares more than these kids. The awful, heartbreaking shots of tears following a loss are proof of that. Find a 12-year-old boy and see how hard it is to make him cry in front of his friends, much less on national television, and you’ll understand just what these games mean to these youngsters. They want to win more than they want anything on Earth.

All that effort, and they still high-five one another as they round the bases following a home run. They walk over to first base to check on the other player and shake hands after accidentally hitting them with a pitch. They help the opponent off the dirt after a slide into a base. They even line up, tears streaming down dirty faces, and shake hands following every single game. They compete as enthusiastically and whole-heartedly as any athletes on the planet, yet remain sensible and respectful at all times.

The managers, umpires and even fans all follow suit as well. Every single person involved in the process, from those who built the multiple stadiums that hold several thousand spectators each, to the concession stand workers, are all there for no pay at all. Admission to the games themselves is free, and concession stand prices are but a fraction of what you’d find at even a minor league stadium. No one (sans ESPN) is there for the money, and yet it all goes off without a hitch. The play is better. The officiating is better. The managing decisions are more thoughtful, and from the kids sliding down the hills beyond the outfield wall on pieces of cardboard to the parents from around the country and world that live and die with every pitch, it sure looks like the crowd is having more fun. I know I am while watching at home.

If you haven’t checked this out yet, do so. Sit down with your family and just watch these youngsters play. You’ll see catches and double plays and swings and pitches that you can’t believe are coming from pre-teens, and I’d wager you’ll have a strong rooting interest within two innings. Maybe it’s for a region you live in or have lived in. Maybe it’s for a state you’re from. Maybe it’s for a country you’ve visited. No matter the reason, you’ll find yourselves pulling for that group of kids. That will be your favorite team for the next two hours, and yet, you’ll still find yourself absolutely crushed and sympathetic for the opposing team if they lose.

It’s Little League. The players, bats, fields and stadiums are smaller. The heart, product, entertainment and drama are as Big League as you’ll find all summer, however. Truth be told, those Major Leaguers could learn a thing or two or 20 from these shrimp-sized sluggers. We spectators can too.

Editor’s Note: The veteran mentioned earlier in this article had his ruling reversed this week and is now cleared to play.

Adair Friends & Neighbors Adult Day News

WRITTEN BY: THE PARTICIPANTS AT THE CENTER

Adair Friends and Neighbors Adult Day Center had a great month in July so we decided to let our neighbors know about what a wonderful place this is. Have you ever had Christmas in July? We did. A tree was decorated, Christmas decorations were placed and beautiful gifts were under the tree. All of us were given a shirt which had the name of our center on it and we were given bags of candy. Singing Christmas songs and baking sugar cookies as well as making chocolate completed our day. It was wonderful. Our director arranged a special surprise for us on July 17th. Imagine our surprise when a fire truck and three firemen show up to give us a lesson on fire safety. We were able to learn how to stay safe in our homes as well as at the center. We were able to tour the fire truck and to actually sit in the truck. Lots of singers have been here this month. We enjoyed this so much and appreciate how the community is supportive. We have to mention the excellent food we have. Meals are prepared with our likes and dislikes in mind. You should taste the salmon patties and the homemade potato salad is to die for! When we go on picnics the cooks out do themselves to make our meal special. Everyone who works at the center is so good to us. We are truly blessed and want to invite you to come join your friends and neighbors at Adair Friends and Neighbors Adult Day Health Center. To schedule a free day call 384-5351. We hope to see you soon.

When Tomorrow Starts Without Me

When tomorrow starts without me,
and I'm not there to see,
If the sun should rise and find your eyes,
All filled with tears for me;
I wish so much you wouldn't cry
The way you did today.
While thinking of the many things
We didn't get to say.
I know how much you love me,
As much as I love you,
and each timethat you think of me,
I know you'll miss me too;
But when tomorrow starts without me,
Please try to understand,
That an Angel came and called my name,
and took me by the hand,

And said my place was ready,
In heaven far above,
And that I would have to leave behind
All those I dearly love.
I thought of all the yesterdays,
The good ones and the bad,
I thought of all the love we shared,
And all the fun we had.
If I could relive yesterday,
Just even for awhile,
I'd say good-bye and kiss you,
and maybe see you smile.
So when tomorrow starts without me,
Don't think we're far apart,
For everytime you think of me,
I'm right here in your heart.

Sadly missed by your family

TOBACCO-FREE SCHOOLS

What is a 100% Tobacco-Free Schools (TFS) Policy?

A 100% Tobacco Free School policy prohibits tobacco use by staff, students, and visitors 24 hours a day, 7 days a week, inside board owned buildings or vehicles, on school owned property and during school-related trips.

WHY HAVE ONE?

- TFS policies reduce youth tobacco use;
- 40% fewer student smokers in TFS;
- Reduce addiction to a deadly drug;
- Reduce your exposure to secondhand smoke;
- Adults act as good role models for students;
- Keep consistent with classroom lessons;
- You'll have a cleaner school.

~ Mark Twain Marching Band Exhibition Saturday ~

BY BLAKE SPIRES
STAFF WRITER

With school back in session and summer fading, residents of Adair County know that band season is upon us. As has become a state marching band institution, the Adair County Marching Band will host its annual Mark Twain pre-season exhibition this Saturday, August 24.

This year's exhibition will be held at the ACHS Football Stadium, with an admission fee of $8.00. The exhibition begins at 3:30pm, with the first band to perform, Larue County, taking the field at 3:45pm. In all, 15 bands from across the Bluegrass will perform, including local bands like Cumberland County at 4:00pm, Campbellsville at 4:15pm, Taylor County at 5:45pm and Russell County at 6:30pm. Adair County will take the field as the host band following the performances of the other schools, and is schedule to begin their performance at 8:00pm.

WALK THIS WAY

The Mark Twain Pre-Season Band Exhibition will get under at 3:45 p.m. The event will be held this year at the new Adair County High School football stadium. Admission is $8. Concessions will be available from the Adair County Band Boosters. Spectators are to use the Indian Drive entrance off Greensburg Street only. The entrances off the Columbia Bypass will be for band busses and trucks only.

An exhibition performance from the Lindsey Wilson College marching band will follow at 8:15pm.

According to band director Tom Case, this year's lineup is as strong as ever, featuring an impressive array of bands from throughout the state.

"The lineup this year features at least eight bands that have been a state finalist over the last 10 years or a Kentucky Governor's Cup recipient at the Contest of Champions," Case said. "We are also very excited for our own Adair County Band to perform as well."

renowned band program's season.

"One of the reasons this event has been so successful is undoubtedly because of the overwhelming support we receive from the school system, Board of Education and community at large," Case said. "We're so thankful for the support from the school principals and Head Football Coach Travis Gay."

"We would also like to thank [Superintendent]

Mr. Reed for allowing us to host the event."

"I'm honored to lead our district and excited to be a part of a school system with a long history of marching band excellence," Reed said. "The Mark Twain festival is one of our treasured traditions."

"When budgets are tight in schools the way they are now, music is often one of the things that is sacrificed," Reed continued.

"However, due to the extraordinary help and support of our band boosters, we are dedicated to preserving the program."

"The ultimate goal is to instill a life-long love of music, creativity and competition, and I feel that our students learn that, along with being prepared for productive lives in the future," he added.

"As always," Reed concluded, "it's an honor to host such an event and to have people in our city and on our campus."

COMBINED NOTICE NOTICE TO PUBLIC OF NO SIGNIFICANT EFFECT ON THE ENVIRONMENT AND NOTICE TO PUBLIC OF REQUEST FOR RELEASE OF FUNDS

Date: August 22, 2013

City of Columbia
116 Campbellsville Street,
Columbia, KY 42728
270-384-6183

TO ALL INTERESTED
AGENCIES, GROUPS, AND PERSONS:

On or about September 9,

2013 the above named City will request the Kentucky Governor's Department for Local Government to release Federal funds under Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974 (PL 93-383) for the following project:

Columbia Waste Water Treatment Plant Site Stabilization Project
(Project Title or Name)

The purpose of this is to reconstruct the banks of Russell Creek while simultaneously installing components that will increase their structural integrity and the stabilization of the landslide above the plant and protect its facilities from damage. (Purpose or Nature of the Project)

Columbia, Adair County, Kentucky 42728
(Location - City, County, State - of Project)

970402
(Census Tract(s))
It has been determined that such request for release of funds will not constitute an action significantly affecting the quality of human environment and, accordingly, the above-named City has decided not to prepare an Environmental Impact Statement under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969 (PL-91-190).

The conclusion can be drawn from the environmental assessment that no harmful effect will result from the implementation of this project.

An Environmental Review Record respecting the within project has been made by the above named City which documents the environmental review of the project and more fully sets forth the reasons why such Statement is not required. This Environmental Review Record is on file at the above address and is available for public examination and copying, upon request, at the Mayor's Office between the hours of 8:00 a.m. and 4:00 p.m.

No further environmental review of such project is proposed to be conducted prior to the request for release of federal funds.

All interested agencies, groups, and persons disagreeing with this decision are invited to submit written comments for consideration by the City to the Mayor's office located in the City Hall. Such written comments should be received at 116 Campbellsville Street, Columbia, KY 42728 on or before September 6, 2013. All such comments so received will be considered and the City will not request the release of Federal funds or take any administrative action on the within project prior to the date specified on the proceeding sentence.

City of Columbia will undertake the project described above with Block Grant funds from the Kentucky Governor's Department for Local Government (DLG) under Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974. City of Columbia is certifying to the state that City of Columbia and Mark Harris, in his official capacity as Mayor, consent to accept the jurisdiction of the federal courts if an action is brought to enforce responsibilities in relation to environmental reviews, decision making, and action; and that these responsibilities have been satisfied. The legal effect of the certification is that upon its approval City of Columbia may use the Block Grant funds and the state and HUD will have satisfied their responsibilities under the National Environmental Policy Act of 1969. The state will accept an objection to its approval only if it is on one of the following bases:

The certification was not in fact executed by the city Certifying Officer.

The city has filed to make one of the two findings pursuant to §58.41 or to make the written determination decision required by §§57.57, 58.53 or 58.64 for the project, as applicable.

The city has omitted one or more of the steps set forth at Subparts F and G for the preparation and completion of an EA.

No opportunity was given to the Advisory Council on Historic Preservation or its Executive Director to review the effect of the project on a property listed on the National Register of Historic Places, or found to be eligible for such listing by the Secretary of the Interior, in accordance with 36 CFR Part 800.

The recipient or other participants in the development process have committed funds, incurred costs or undertaken activities not authorized by this part before release of funds and approval of the Environmental Certification by HUD or the State.

Objections have been made by a federal agency.

Objections must be prepared and submitted in accordance with the required procedures (24 CFR Part 58) and may be addressed to the Kentucky Governor's Department for Local Government, Division of Community Programs, 1024 Capital Center Drive, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601.

Objections to the release of funds on bases other than those stated above will not be considered by the state. No objection received after September 24, 2013 will be considered by the state.

Mark Harris, Mayor

 The coach shared one of his favorite motivational tools to use on his players, explaining that he is always reminding them of the only two things they have complete control over in life: their effort and their attitude.
 Oliver also expressed his gratitude to the Chamber, as well as the community at large, for their continued support of the college, its athletic programs, and specifically the football program.
 “I want to thank all of you guys,” Oliver said. “We’re looking forward to a great season.”
 Following Oliver’s speech he handed out several sets of football tickets to this month’s drawing winners.
 •Heard from Ann Martin, representing this month’s corporate sponsor, First & Farmers National Bank.
 Martin offered a brief history of the institution, beginning with its Columbia debut in 1903. She explained the bank currently holds more than $475 million in assets, and has 12 locations in four counties. She said that First & Farmers online banking system has been growing in popularity, and that they continue to fine-tune the online banking experience for their customers.
 •Heard announcements from Chamber President Roger Meadows. The Chamber picnic is set for Sept. 17, at 6:30 p.m. at the Roadside Park.
 “That’s always a good event each year,” Meadows said. “This year we’re doing a wreath decorating contest.”
 Buy, Swap, Sell & Trade Day is once again scheduled for Labor Day, on the public square. Meadows said that this event is an annual tradition for the Chamber, and he encouraged the members to participate this year.
 Lastly, Meadows mentioned the upcoming Wares Fair at Lindsey Wilson College, scheduled for tonight. He said that 40 businesses have already registered.
 “This lets students know what businesses are in town,” Meadows explained. “We’re looking for a good turnout this year.”

LWC Men's Soccer hosts Spring Arbor in Tourbeau's National Men's Soccer Game of the Week

Matchup is first of 12 games to be featured as NAIA Game of the Week
 The Lindsey Wilson men’s soccer team kicks off the 2013 season on Thursday, Aug. 22 at 7 p.m. CT against Spring Arbor (Mich.) University at Walter S. Reuling Stadium in the Tourbeau National Men’s Soccer Game of the Week, presented by NCSAA and Admiral Soccer.
 The national live stream broadcast will feature multiple camera angles, play-by-play and color commentary.
 Lindsey Wilson enters the game ranked No. 3 in the NAIA Coaches’ Preseason Top 25 Poll, while Spring Arbor is just outside the Top 25 receiving votes.
 Both teams qualified for the 2012 NAIA National Tournament in 2012. Spring Arbor was eliminated in the opening round while Lindsey Wilson advanced to the national semifinals before falling to eventual champion Belhaven (Miss.).
 The Tourbeau Sports Group has been responsible for the NAIA Men’s Soccer National Championship Tournament broadcast since 2008.
 The broadcast of the game can be seen here.
